5. Review of previous AIs:
 - a. Diffed the formatting of the implementation and deployment profiles, referred to Kantara formatting guide
 - b. Larger questions came up:
 - i. Recommendation: Use the first paragraph as the abstract. Start the introduction after that.
 - ii. AI: Walter will do this
 - i. Link: <https://kantarainitiative.github.io/SAMLprofiles/saml2int.html>
 - ii. AI: Walter will add this as the location, we'll use this until we get the final location just prior to approved publication
 - i. Group should pick one of the four Kantara-approved IP agreements
 - ii. No reason we have to stick to what's on the doc right now
 - iii. Probably the newest version of the CC share-alike attribution license would be the right way to go.
 1. <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/4.0/>
 - iv. AI: Walter will update accordingly - to cc-by-sa-4.0
 - i. Scott is in favor of what's there, or strike the Internet2 part, so just "copyright by its respective contributors, used under license"
 - ii. AI: Walter to change to this
 - i. Walter suggests:
 1. Remove the ORCID
 2. Add the current authors to the top
 3. Put the legacy authors in an appendix
 - ii. Scott suggests:
 1. All authors in the appendix
 2. Keith and Nick agree
 - iii. No opposition to putting all authors in an appendix, it's effectively what we have now. Just reference "see appendix" in the contributors section at the top.
 - iv. Judith notes that a paragraph of names at the beginning isn't unusual in academia

- v. Keith suggests names/orgs of current contributors at the top of the doc. The appendix repeats that with orcsids and email addresses at the end.
- vi. Walter suggests removing email addresses.
- vii. Keith says: Remove ORCID, email address, leave current and previous contributors at the top
 - 1. Al: Walter to do
 - i. SAML v2.0 Deployment Profile for Federation Interoperability
 - ii. The group thinks these need to match
 - iii. Thank you Walter!
 - iv. Al: Walter rearrange to make these match
 - i. If we made the notation and terminology sections as they are in the implementation profile, then all these would align across docs. Small amount of work to make this really clean.
 - 1. Al: Walter align
 - ii. Section titles:
 - 1. Al: Walter to do
 - 1. Change IdP and SP to be Identity Provider and Service Provider.
 - iii. Only use IdP/SP abbreviations in non-normative sections
 - 1. The sense is that the document contains a bit too many IdPs and SPs mentions to make it read well if they are all expanded.
 - iv. There is a normative references section and a non-normative references section. Is this necessary?
 - 1. Yes, keeping them separate is necessary.
 - 2. Could be two subsections.
 - 3. Al: Walter to break this into two sub-sections under a references section.
 - i. There is now a blank Abstract section that must be populated.
 - ii. A blank Location section has been added. This will change just prior to final approval, but I think for now this should be pointed to the current location of the auto-rendered version, if there is such a thing.
 - iii. Please note that I changed the CC license to the same as the IP-FI. This may not be what everyone wants, but the Kantara boilerplate contains a list of "approved" licenses. I'm not sure what the process would be to use another, if that is desired.
 - iv. Is the copyright correct?
 - v. Kantara requires a Contributors section on the "first page." Rendering what we have now at the top looks to me like a big mess. For the IP-FI, we pared the information down quite a bit, which is what I'd recommend. Other alternatives allowed by the Kantara boilerplate are to have the Contributors section link to the WG "Group Roster" page or to reference an appendix. I don't favor these approaches, although the appendix might be a reasonable solution for contributors to the old version.
 - vi. I/we need to figure out why asciidoctor is rendering the contributors section(s) inside the "ul" div, making the heading appear red and too small.
 - vii. Title discrepancy between implementation and deployment profiles. Words are flipped around. Seems less clear that they are peer documents meant to be used in tandem.
 - viii. Other things we could do to make these easier to read together
 - a. Walter: formatting revisions: <https://github.com/KantaraInitiative/SAMLprofiles/pull/136>
 - b. Walter should delete the old PR and just merge to master.
